

I am wholly against any further corporate concentration of media outlets. The war we have just experienced is a prime example why further media concentration is a treat to our way of life. As more media are owned by fewer corporations, the more the news and programming reflect narrow interests that seek to maximize profits for the corporation. This way, broadcasting come to reflect corporate interests rather than public interests and balance. Competition in media ownership is a good thing. Please do not encourage ownership of media outlets in the hands of a few!! In a democracy, an informed public is crucial.
